Happy Fall!

A new season of change and changing times with my now “teen” aged son Miles. He turned 13 this summer — got his braces off, became an 8th grader, broke a 100 yard free style record at Arden Hills (59:48) and finished his swim season — a Second Place Swim Champ at Championships this summer! What a proud mother I am! Let the games begin with new classes this fall. Check out our $15 classes on Wednesdays and Thursdays. Super fast, super simple and super easy cards and projects. Why not try something fun with your friends... a quick lunch-time break.

Card Exchange! Here's another fun holiday event we will have at the boutique. We are going to have a sign up sheet for 24 cardmakers. Create 24 holiday cards and we will give you 24 cards back so you have a total of 24! It's so fun. How do you participate... just sign up at the store... it's FREE! We will have a fun “exchange your cards” party on Saturday, December 1st.

a little tid bit about me, I didn't have a lot of female “Asian” role models to look up to back in the 70's and 80's... because they really didn't exist on tv or the big screen. But, my family did watch and tune into the shows where Asians broke the barrier, there was Mrs. Livingston (Courtship of Eddie's Father), I have seen every episode... then when we turned on the local CBS news, there was Wendy Tokuda and Evening Magazine's Jan Yanehiro (I remember watching them as I ate my TV dinner), and then the big time CBS network weekend anchor Connie Chung (my hero!). Wow a lightbulb moment... I knew I was going to be a journalist... one of the few Asian American tv journalists. Best advice... shoot for your dreams and make them a reality.
